Tutoring Experience

I have 14 years of experience teaching History across various curriculums, including IB, A-Level, and IGCSE. During my career, I've worked with students globally, helping them master complex topics such as historical source analysis and thematic essay writing. My expertise lies in simplifying intricate historical narratives to make them accessible and engaging.

My journey began at renowned educational centres in China, where I taught both in-person and online. Over the years, I developed a keen ability to tailor my lessons to diverse student needs, ensuring each individual gains confidence and competence in their studies. My areas of focus include ancient civilisations, modern revolutions, and global conflicts.

I also specialise in helping students achieve top scores in IB and AP History exams by refining their critical thinking and analytical skills. From understanding primary sources to crafting compelling arguments, I aim to prepare my students for academic success and lifelong learning in History.
